THE MOSCOW CONFERENCE

Many writers who are commenting on the conference of Allied representatives in Moscow are concerned about the effect on relationships between the victor powers, Russia, Great Britain and the United States are attempting to chart a course which presumably will be followed during the actual peace negotiations.

But there is more immediate importance attached to the preliminary meetings. No nation is more interested in the trend of the Moscow conference than Germany. And Germany's interest is immediate.

If the preliminary meetings in Moscow show that the three Allies are determined to form a common political front, that they are capable of agreement on all the difficult questions concerning the smaller powers, they will do more than lay a cornerstone for a successful peace. They will also shorten the war.

It is apparent that Germany continues to fight in the hope that the whole European world will crash in ruins with her. She hopes to emerge from the war in the end no weaker than the nations which surround her. Victory is out of the question now. But the German military leaders may be expected to attempt to prolong the war if they see signs of disagreement among the Allied leaders. German propaganda is aimed at weakening and dividing Germany's enemies.

Every effort is being made by the Nazis to sow seeds of distrust of one another in the minds of the Allied peoples. These efforts coincide with Nazi attempts to dissipate the strength of all conquered nations. Wealth, raw materials and manpower have been transferred to Germany. As the Germans retreat they leave a trail of well planned destruction behind them.

How long this course will seem advantageous to Germany, how long resistance will seem worth while, depends in great part on the outcome of the Moscow conference. A firm, united front will be a powerful persuasive to abandonment of the military struggle. A faint spark of hope still smolders in the Wilhelmstrasse. The Moscow conference can extinguish it.

Another thing that becomes more apparent is that Eddie Rickenbacker could never be a New Dealer.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

ury's own analysis of the inflation problem but would have made its avowed objectives completely unattainable.

LITERALLY NO ONE, outside of the Treasury, pretended to think the additional revenue of ten billion could be obtained in the way suggested. No Congressional leader supported it and the proposals dropped of their own weight, with their sponsors bearing the odium of as laxen a piece of Executive politics as can be recalled. It would have been pretty bad at any time, but with a great war on, a fourth-term movement under way and the election only twelve months off, it was really raw.

SO MUCH for the Administration. But, have the Republicans taken a more elevated and less sordid stand? They have not. A few days ago the Republican leadership denounced the Administration's bill as political, asserted its opposition to any increase in income taxes and insisted that the additional revenue could be had by cutting out waste in war expenditures. This attitude is no more honest than that of the Administration. It isn't honest because, urgent as economy is, no one seriously can think that all the revenue the Government needs can be raised that way.

OLVIOUSLY, the elimination of waste must be coupled with more taxes. One is as important as the other. Neither can be adequate alone and the Republican position is as clearly taken with the 1944 election in mind as is that of the White House and Treasury. However, the big piece of dishonesty in the manner in which both shy away from the general sales tax. The thoughtful men in both parties know—and privately say—that this is the fairest, easiest, soundest method of raising the needed money. They know, too, that it is the most effective way of reaching the untaxed billions and reducing the danger of inflation by diminishing surplus-buying power. They also know that nearly every other effective method of raising money has been exhausted.

NEVERTHELESS, the politicians shrink from it as they would from a snake. Each side is afraid lest the other jockey it into position where it can be charged in the coming campaign with favoring it. The Administration takes an open anti-sales-tax stand and the Republicans ignore even a mention of it in their Pecksniffian pronouncement. The hostility of the one and the avoidance of the other are equally political, plainly inspired by the labor bullies who have served notice on both sides that they "will not stand for a sales tax," and whose highly patriotic idea seems to be that members of unions should be exempt from all taxes. Altogether, it is a very unedifying spectacle—well calculated to raise the question: If this is the American way of life, why try to preserve it?

but the kitchen stove because she's a cold type; and Dad, the exact opposite, wears nothing but an abbreviated, old-fashioned night-shirt, split far up each side. Seeing them like this you'd never suspect that Dad is a tall, distinguished-looking, gray-haired man who bowls over every widow and spinster who looks up into his steel-blue eyes; and that mother is a real beauty. Brown-eyed, brown-haired, with a trick way of looking at you from lowered eyelids which makes you listen to her attentively, fervidly hoping the heat of an incendiary bomb. I stood there brooding about Pamela. That Keith woman! Well, Pamela Keith, only thirty-nine, had certainly been news in member. A year or so ago I'd grown curious about how her big toboggan ride into notoriety had started, and (a sleuth at heart) I had spent one whole day in the Tribune's morgue getting the low-down. It was plenty!

THAT KEITH WOMAN

by PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

CHAPTER ONE
THE telephone rang shrilly at seven o'clock that Saturday morning. For moments I lay in bed, grumbling under my breath in the competent way I've learned from Dad and my associates on the Tribune where I'm Assistant Society Editor. Then I got up, shivered into my blue satin housecoat and mules, and did a neat twenty yard dash through my icy room and down a long hall.

My teeth chattered like musketry as I stuttered "Hell-ll-o," and goose-pimples peppered me all over. Incidentally, they were the first of the goose-pimples I was to experience in the grim week that followed, but they popped up many times later for reasons far more chilling than mere coldness. I had no way to know, of course, as I listened to that strained voice on the other end of the wire that I was being plunged headlong into a tangled black web of murder.

Pamela Keith said, "Letty? Letty, I'm going to call off Sandra's debut this afternoon. I—I can't go through with it."

"What!" I cried. "Good Lord, Pamela!"

"I'm all—shot this morning, Letty."

I thought I understood. "Look, Pamela," I soothed. "Take some sedative, mix some gin with orange juice—anything. Or—go soak your head! Do anything but don't call off the party. Why, Pamela, the press would come down on you like a blitz! All your friends would fall head-over-heels for the Social Register. And this of Sandra! You know how cruel young people can be! They have their mean little yardsticks by which they measure one another's importance. . . . Sandra would never live it down."

Poor little Sandra—Pamela Keith's deb daughter—who'd had enough to live down already.

"I am thinking of Sandra," Pamela said slowly. "That's why I want you to announce the cancellation of the debut in your noon edition, Letty. Get it on the radio somehow. Into all the early afternoon papers."

"But, Pamela, you just can't do this. It's too late. . . ."

I talked on and on, and when I'm really wound up I'm like a dictionary wired for sound. I come by this accomplishment naturally. My father, before he left Congress and became one of the horde of lame ducks in Washington, was called "Filibustering Sam"; and my mother, saturated with a strange variety of facts, vague ideas, and ethical principles, makes speeches before any woman's organization that will listen to her and that won't, and talks in her sleep besides. . . .

When I'd quite finished Pamela said: "All right, Letty. You win."

"That's the ticket. See you later, Pamela," I declared, and hung up. I was relieved for I'm extremely fond of little Sandra Keith. But later I was to wonder, conscience-stricken, what course events would have taken if I had not insisted that Pamela Keith go on with her daughter's debut. Maybe none of those

Republican Management s Made County Offices Efficient In Every Manner

Commissioners pay up the back taxes, return the money to the delinquent owner, and the property was located, and thing that is left is considered.

Another very important department of the County Commissioners' office is that of the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes. Mr. Harvey also heads this department as Chief Assessor. This department under a new Act of Assembly, known as "The Fourth to Eighth Class County Assessment Law," started operating this year. Chief Assessor Harvey was appointed by the board which is composed of the three County Commissioners.

The Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes will hear and determine appeals; establish the form of the assessment roll and the other listing of persons and property in such assessment roll and in the tax duplicates prepared from such roll. There are many other duties, too.

It is the Chief Assessor's duty to advise the board in the preparation of rules and regulations and to prepare, when directed by the board, land value maps, tax maps, permanent record cards and such to secure a proper and equitable assessment.

Assistant assessors and other employees are under the supervision of the Chief Assessor.

There is an assessor in each ward in each borough and in each township in Bucks county, the term of office being four years.

Under the new set-up the assessment roll is open to the public inspection at the offices of the board in the Bucks County Administration Building, where the Commissioners are located, during ordinary business hours of each business day. Other maps, plans, surveys and records as may be deemed necessary from the time of completion and delivery to the board, to and including the first day of October.

On the first business day following October 1, the board meets for the hearing of appeals and continues to meet for such purpose from time to time, until all persons who have stated their intention to appeal have been heard and the appeals acted upon, but not later than December 1.

Under the new set-up, any person who shall have appealed to the County Board for relief from any assessment, who may feel aggrieved by the order of the board in relation to such assessment, may appeal from the order of the board to the Court of Common Pleas of the county within which the property is situated.

Likewise, appeals can also be made to the Supreme or Superior Courts. Appeals can also be made by municipalities as well as individuals.

There are many other duties in the jurisdiction of a County Commissioner, and all have been very ably handled under Republican supervision, as Bucks county's very low tax rate of 4 mills and an exceedingly low bonded indebtedness of $64,000, indicates.

Accuses Union In Brewster Probe

Riebel also disclosed that on two occasions last summer, the Navy withdrew its financial support, and Brewster was technically bankrupt for short periods of time.

The first occasion was on June 25, and the second was after the August strike at the Johnsville, Pa., plant. Both times, said Riebel, he pleaded for another chance for the company, and the Navy reinstated its $55,000,000 V-Loan guarantee the same day. This was the furthest the Navy has ever gone in its despair at getting adequate production from Brewster.

In addition, Riebel revealed, had the Long Island City employees joined the Johnsville strike, the Navy had full arrangements for trucks to roll up to plants and remove all material and parts to other aircraft factories.

Riebel, who roamed over many subjects and gave numerous opinions during the day, said if it had not been for the Wagner Act, he could have gotten 85 percent of the employees to remain at work when the strike was called at Johnsville last August.

He said that "thousands of workers" appealed to him to keep them at work.

"Fine American boys and girls," he said, "came and asked me: 'can't you help us; we don't even know why the union stewards are ordering us out.'"

Riebel said that he was unable to do anything for them, and that they went out because of fear that the union would order them laid off or fined if they remained at work.

"The real reason production doesn't get out at Brewster," he said bitterly, "is because every man, woman and child who works there is afraid of Tom de Lorenzo and his 40 thieves. If the War Labor Board would withdraw maintenance of membership from the union, Tom de Lorenzo would be just another little punk sitting in the gutter."

As an example of how this union "fear" works, he gave the following examples.

One man refused to go out because a plane was being tested in the air, and it was his job to service it when it came down. The man was cited for a hearing before the union trial board. When Riebel protested this, the union shifted the complaint to using "profane language" to a union brother. The man, Dick Spano, had cursed the union steward who ordered him to strike, and was laid off for a month at the order of the union trial board. That cost him nearly $600 in lost pay, according to Riebel.

On the other hand, Riebel pointed out that the four guards who were court-martialed and have now been reinstated at the plant, have been given $311 back pay covering the period when they were under arrest by the Coast Guard.

The ex-president of the firm argued that this showed what the union could do and how it could make members fear to disobey it.

Henry J. Kaiser, new president of Brewster, will testify today.

The jeeps and drivers will spend a day at the school, date to be announced later. The collection last evening was turned over to the Boy Scout troop in answer to a plea for funds. Named on the committee to provide entertainment in November is Miss Jane Kohler and Melvin Mack.

The same plan for a membership drive as followed last year is to be adopted this term, the pupil securing the largest number of members receiving a prize.

Mr. White presented the new teachers to the assemblage, these including: the Misses Marguerite Kroekel, Marjorie Church, Dorothy Green; and Messrs. Russell Struble and Frank Hege, of the high school staff; also Mrs. Fred Juliff, Mrs. Melvin Mack, the Misses Sarah Meyers, Helen McCreary, and E. Ruth Burtfield from the grades.

New members accepted are Mrs. James Hamilton and Mrs. Kasperczak. The new teachers and new members, interrogated by Mr. White, were thus introduced in a novel way to the group.

Miscellaneous Gifts Are Presented To Miss Zug

Miss Anita Zug, Jackson street, was tendered a surprise miscellaneous shower at her home on Wednesday evening by one of her attendants-to-be, Miss Helen Repella, Jackson street. The living room was attractive in pink and blue. In the center of the room was an open umbrella also grimed in the same tones, with streamers attached. A gift was tied to each streamer and the gifts were hidden back of the various pieces of furniture.

A supper was served, red, white and blue crepe streamers decorating the dining room. Streamers were draped from the chandelier to the center of the table where a miniature bride and groom stood. The groom was dressed as a soldier. Favors were soldier hats filled with nuts.

The invitation list included: Mrs. William White, Mrs. Peter Firce, Mrs. Robert Schemley, Mrs. James R. Gailley, Mrs. Eleanor Simons, Mrs. William Brady, Mrs. John Kwochka, Mrs. William DeVoe, Mrs. Joseph Michelson, Mrs. Leonard Dugan, Mrs. William Winslow, Mrs. Vernon Howell, Mrs. Michael Choma, Mrs. S. Repella, Mrs. Fanny Zug, Mrs. Arthur F. Zug, the Misses Jean Stetson, Anna Sagolla.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Gailley)
Pastor
Bristol Presbyterian Church

Almighty God, in Whom we live and move and have our being, we thank Thee for Thy providence, that Thou hast prepared a pathway in which we might walk, that our lives are in Thy hand. We thank Thee for Thy care for our loved ones wherever they may be, and for Thy continual presence with them. Make us thoroughly reconciled to Thy will, O Father, and create a faith within our hearts which will enable us to believe that all things, pleasant or unpleasant, easy or difficult, work together for good to them that love Thee. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Pile up Dead Leaves to Make Garden Humus

A Completed Compost Heap.

While decay of a compost pile proceeds slowly in cold weather, the quantity of material available for rotting down into garden humus is greatest in the fall, when dead leaves accumulate.

Burning leaves is a waste, but the advice often given to spade them into the garden soil is not sound. Leaves from many trees decay so slowly that spring will find them still intact, and if many have been worked into the soil they will be a nuisance all summer long without benefiting the crops.

So a compost heap, begun in the fall by piling up dead leaves, offers the best solution. It can be added to in the spring and summer, with lawn clippings and plant debris, and by next fall should provide humus of a quality which will be an un-mixed blessing to your garden.

Set aside a suitable location, out of the way, and preferably screened by planting, or a fence; 10 x 10 feet would be an average size. Clean off all vegetation, and harden the surface soil by rolling. Pile evenly over this area all dead leaves and other waste plant and even animal material, from your garden, and from kitchen wastes. But carefully exclude, if you would avoid trouble, all wood, branches, twigs and metal objects. When the layer, well tramped down, is six inches thick, sprinkle it with Victory garden fertilizer mixture, about one ounce to a square yard. Wood ashes and limestone are also beneficial, each in three or more times this quantity. Then wet it down.

Build up the heap, layer by layer, with similar applications between the layers, and keep it moist. If bad odors develop an inch of soil thrown on top of the pile will prevent them. When the pile is as high as you can conveniently manage, cover the top with soil and let it stand until you are ready to dig the humus into the garden. Start a new one to take care of current accumulations. Such compost piles, consistently maintained, should provide your garden with all the humus required for good condition.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Drama that a few years ago would have been called fantastic has been taken from the newspaper headlines to make "Hitler - Dead or Alive," at the Grand Theatre today, one of the most exciting, as well as illuminating films dealing with the hated Nazi leader that has yet come out of Hollywood. Those who have seen it declare it to be sure-fire dramatic entertainment, packed with thrills, thrills and rollicking laughter.

Ward Bond, last seen in "Gentleman Jim," has the role of leader of a trio of American gangsters who have accepted the offer of an American business man of $1,000,000 to get Hitler, dead or alive.

Robert Paige's entry into motion pictures, reputedly the most difficult profession to crash, is reminiscent of the famed cub reporter who got a coveted photograph after everybody else on the staff had failed. The cub simply knocked on the front door, asked for it, and the photograph was given to him. That's what Robert Paige did. A resident of Los Angeles at the time, he simply met an agent and the agent got him his first movie job. Paige is playing the romantic lead opposite Elyse Knox in "Mister Big," at the Ritz Theatre.

Managers of Both Elevens Feel Confident Their Teams Will Win

In the first Lower Bucks County gridiron clash of the season, Bristol High will meet Bensalem High tomorrow afternoon on the Owls' field at Cornwells Heights.

Last season, Bristol scored a 6-0 triumph over the Bensalemites, it being Bristol's only win of the season.
The Owls are always at their best against the Bunnies and if this still holds true, a close game is predicted.

The war has curtailed the Bensalem schedule to six games. One of these, already played, resulted in a 7-7 verdict with Upper Moreland.
Last week the Owls were idle.

Coach Charlie Utz's Bristol boys were going at top speed until Monday night when they took a 25-9 lacing at the hands of the Riverside team. Prior to that they had beaten Trenton Catholic, George School, and Conshohocken. A little colored lad by the name of Tyler upset the works for Bristol in the Riverside fray.

Despite the 25-0 drubbing, the Bristol lineup is still intact. Joe McDevitt saw action against Riverside after being on the sidelines against the Conshohocken boys.
The other boys are in good shape and feel as if they could not get started against the Jerseyites.

Coach Utz is undecided as to whom he will start against the Owls but most likely it will be as follows: Ends, Snyder and Fisher; tackles, E. Cordisco and Iannucci; guards, Peole and Fallon; center, Mandio; quarterback, Johnson; halfbacks, Oriola and Elmer; fullback, Collins.

The Owls are being coached by William Mack, who is substituting in place of Norman Wetherhold, who is now in the armed forces.
Mack is being assisted by John Bixler, and the pair has a total of 27 players in the squad, with "Johnny" Dean, halfback, being captain of the squad.

PERSONAL NOTES

Jesse Vanzant, 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Vanzant, Jr., Swain street, has been confined to his home by illness this week.

of women, talked to her audience about "Woman Power."

"You here probably represent the spiritually literate of your churches," observed Mrs. Swain. "Go back to the spiritually illiterate and make them understand what the church is about. As Christians we must be as like Jesus Christ and what he stands for that we are contagious."

All officers, with the exception of the treasurer, were re-elected at the annual re-organization meeting of the Warrington Parent-Teacher Association held in the Warrington school house, on Tuesday.

Mrs. Benjamin Musselman, who did not seek re-election, was succeeded by Mrs. David Young as treasurer. Officers re-elected are as follows: President, Mrs. George E. L. Hain; vice-president, Mrs. Carroll B. Keck, and secretary, Mrs.
Sydney Painter.

Mrs. Klein appointed Mrs. Henry K. Strawn, Mrs. David Young and Mrs. Fred Buehler to serve on the membership committee.

Unmarried members of the Samaritan class of the Presbyterian Sunday School, Doylestown, were the winners in a quiz program which featured the meeting in the Educational Building, on Tuesday.
Taking sides against the single contestants were a group of married members, with Mrs. Doris Champion asking the questions.

The team made up of the single contestants included the Misses Elizabeth Myers, Lois Ballie, Betty Berger, Alice Krawson, and Marian Dixon. Their opponents were Mrs.
Annetta Mason, Mrs. Lucille Schenk, Mrs. Mildred Reynolds,
Mrs. Gertrude Goranilo and Mrs.
Virginia Rysdale. Lois Ballie had a perfect score, and all members of the winning team were presented with defense stamps.

More than 100 members and guests attended the meeting, which was featured by the serving of a covered dish supper with Mrs. Ruth Pearce serving as mistress of ceremonies.

Guernsey cows ranged in selling price from $190 to $202 at a largely attended sale held on the property of Mrs. Joseph Robbins, near Morrisville, Saturday.

The sale was featured by lively bidding throughout the entire afternoon. In general the prices received for the livestock, farm machinery and crops were quite good.

Household articles were also in great demand, and among them sold was a cherry table which went to the high bidder for $50. An iron safe brought $56, and a Queen Anne mirror sold for $45 after several rounds of brisk bidding.

Horses sold as high as $110 each, and chickens brought as high as $1.65 each.

Prices received for farm implements were as follows: tractor, $630; truck, $660; disc harrow, $156; manure spreader, $115; spring tooth harrow, $79, and mowing machine, $50.

A mow of alfalfa and timothy hay went to the high bidder for $285 and second crop alfalfa sold readily for $25 per ton.

piano selections which were very much enjoyed.

Lester D. Thorne, treasurer of the Bristol Community Concerts, and member of the Rotary Club, introduced the speaker at the afternoon session.

Bernhardt told of his background for his career in music, giving many of the highlights. He told both groups of the coming concert in Bristol and reminded them that the membership drive for these concerts ends tomorrow.

J. Goodner Gill, vice-president of Rider College, was the featured speaker at the Exchange Club meeting. He spoke on the subject, "Patriotism." He gave many timely and important issues of the need for patriotism during the present conflict.

Despite His Age He Works In Defense Plant

lin, but he scarcely touches it now.
He is too busy with other things.
Prior to working at Fleetwings, Mr. Keefer was employed on farms in this section, and also did gardening work for a time at George School.

The Keefer family loves music.
Mr. Keefer's son, Austin Roy Keefer, is organist at the Church Farm School, on the Main Line, where he also teaches Latin and other subjects.

The elder Keefers have a daughter and a son, and two grandchildren, one of the latter being in the service.

Mrs. Keefer is just as alert and active as her husband, and believes the fact that she is in her 80th years. She, too, remembers doing tasks about the household when but nine years old. "My mother was ill, and I did the family wash. My hands were too small for me to satisfactorily wring out father's shirts, so my mother sat by the tub and wrung them free of water. I guess hard work just agreed with Mr. Keefer and me." Mrs. Keefer bakes all her own bread, pies, cakes and cookies; does her own cleaning, washing, ironing, etc. During the past summer she canned about 400 quarts of fruits and vegetables, including 65 quarts of tomatoes, 60 quarts of string beans, much chili sauce, etc. Her grandmother, Sarah McKinstry, was a first cousin of Betsy Ross, states Mrs. Keefer.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

"Hunting Accommodations in Pennsylvania," the booklet compiled by the State Department of Commerce, is ready for free distribution.
The Department announces. The booklet contains the names of hotels, inns, boarding houses, farm houses and other places where hunters may obtain accommodations. The game laws also appear in the booklet along with the names and addresses of the State game protectors. A post card to the Department will get your copy.

More fish stocking . . . from the Torresdale hatcheries the Fish Commission sent another load of fish last week. Five hundred bluegills for Maple Beach and 500 bluegills and 700 catfish for the canal between Bristol and New Hope. The bluegills were exceptionally large and in excellent condition.

Production of bass at the Hackettstown, N. J., fish hatchery during 1943 reached an all-time record, the State Fish and Game Commission announced recently. A total of 460,000 fingerling bass, the largest number in the history of the hatchery, comprised the season's output.

Of this total 121,985 small mouth bass and 263,015 large mouth bass have already been placed in public waters of New Jersey for the sport of licensed fishermen.

The commission declared there had been an increased interest and a greater demand for better fishing in lakes in recent years and efforts have been made to boost the output of bass to take care of the demand.

The commission realizes the importance of this work at this time not only for its recreational advantages but also for its food value. It is especially important for men returning from the armed services who will be able to enjoy this fishing from a boat, even though they may not be able to participate in the more strenuous stream fishing.

The importance of observing a "complete blackout" of forest fires to protect the drought-ridden Commonwealth was recently emphasized by George H. Wirt, chief State Forest Fire Warden. Wirt emphasized that hunters can help keep forest fires at a minimum by being extra careful in the woods. "We must exercise the greatest care for the next few months," he said. "The country is completely dry and some communities are down to the last drop of water in reservoirs."

The story of three local duck hunters who got lost in a fog . . .
briefly, the story runs like this:
The three men decided to go duck hunting on the Delaware several days ago, and plans were made accordingly. The river was quite foggy when the men met to go on the trip, but they entered the boat and proceeded boldly out into the stream. Just one hour after they started (the fog had begun to lift) they were quite surprised to find that they were within 100 yards of where they started! John Johnson blamed Don Moyer and Don blamed John for the predicament. Ralph Ratcliffe blamed them both!
